VIRAJ CHOUDHARI M.Sc. Environment Science

I feel privileged to be part of the Department of Environmental Studies at MIT-WPU. The M.Sc. Environment Science programme here offers a thorough understanding of environmental science, covering critical topics like pollution, climate change, and sustainable development. The hands-on learning experiences, including internships and fieldwork, have been invaluable in developing my practical skills. Faculty members are exceptionally knowledgeable and support collaborative learning, fostering leadership and innovation. The department's strong industry connections have provided me with meaningful exposure and opportunities. Studying here has not just been about academics but also about cultivating responsibility towards the planet, preparing me to make a positive impact in the field of environmental science and sustainability.
